O N

The Marraige of John Brown, Merchant in Holland, and Margaret Hepburn, Daughter to the Laird of Bainsfoot,

Solemnized 28 of July 1714.

THE Beauty new of Edinburgh Town,
She's Chang'd her Collour into Brown,
After it's so long Preservation,
Shes like to pass out of this Nation,
That she may Learn the H. Land Fashion,
To Eat her Butter with Garleik,
And so become a Lazie Freik,
By mixing Bear with Brandy Wine,
Makes Young Pigs grow ill Favour'd Swin,
And Eat their own Flesh when they Dine,
In Sheives of Bread with Poudred Porck,
Untill they Swim above like Cock,
So that a Bairfoot must be best,
To Equalize all of that Nest,
Where de Ruters and de Veits,
Came to be Cut into Bits,
Magie had better kept at Heme,
Than thither gone and Bairfoot come
Again, when she's not worth a Black,
And her Brown turned is to Black,
Like those who Suiters were to her,
Who are grown mad and knows not where,
To find their Fancie till Return,
They see their old Jo Magie Hepburne,
Come Home again and Change her Hew,
Of Rid and White from Brown to Blew.
