The Sutherland papers, being the charters, family, estate, legal, and financial records of the Earls and Dukes of Sutherland from the 13th century to the death of the 2nd Duke in 1861, were deposited in the National Library of Scotland by the Countess of Sutherland in 1980 as Deposit 313. Although the charters date back to the early 13th century the bulk of the archive relates to the 18th and early 19th centuries, and shows the growth of one of the largest landed estates in Scotland at the time of the controversial clearances.

The main series of family papers begins in the 17th century with personal accounts of the Earls from the 1650s and correspondence from the time of the 13th Earl. Of particular interest amongst the early letters is the correspondence relating to the 1715 and 1745 Rebellions. By the time of Elizabeth, Duchess-Countess of Sutherland there is an extensive run of correspondence largely on family and estate matters. Detailed records of estate management also appear from the 17th century and include accounts of Sir Robert Gordon as tutor to the 13th Earl of Sutherland, 1615-26. The Factors' records gradually increase in number and comprehensiveness until by 19th century scarcely any aspect of estate business is left unrecorded.

The archive includes records of a number of other families: the Maxwells of Preston, connected with the Earls of Sutherland by marriage; the Reay Country papers and those relating to the Gordons of Carrol are present as their lands were purchased by the Sutherland estate in the early 19th century.

The papers were arranged and listed in 1954 by Professor Robin Adam and this arrangement has largely been retained. A copy of his 'Draft Catalogue of Dunrobin Muniments', is available on request. The Sutherland papers were consulted by Sir William Fraser in connection with his work for which see The Sutherland Book, 3 vols (Edinburgh, 1892). Many items removed by Fraser have recently been restored to the archive and now form part of Acc.10853. Although these papers relate broadly to Sutherland matters there are exceptions; it should be noted that material in some of the sections overlaps and that the existence of a folder or bundle does not imply that papers on the same subject do not occur elsewhere.

See also Dep.314. For further estate papers, 1861-1920, see Accs.10225, 10853 and 12173. Acc.10853 and 12173 include some pre-1861 estate papers. Personal papers post-1861 have been retained at Dunrobin.

After the marriage of Elizabeth, Countess of Sutherland in 1785, the estate was managed from Trentham and London with local Factors based in Sutherland. Policy papers and material relating to Sutherland Head Office are held with the archive of the family's English estates at Staffordshire Record Office
